

MESSAGE FROM THE EDITOR

Dr. Amit Agarwal, MS, FICS, FAIS, FAES, FCD
Editor-in-Chief

Dear IAES Members,

It is indeed a pleasure to bring out this issue of Annals of Endocrine Surgery which carries articles contributed by our esteemed members. The articles range from the very relevant usage of antibiotics to the uncommon but not rare conditions like normocalcemic hyperparathyroidism. The article on locally advanced thyroid highlights the advanced surgical skills that an endocrine surgeon needs to acquire to provide optimal care to thyroid cancer patients. The case report of Monck bergs sclerosis emphasizes the close co-operation of an endocrine pathologist to diagnose unusual presentations. The article on thyroid lymphoma yet again places a great emphasis on decision making in endocrine surgery while teaching us where not to put the knife! The article on use of superficial cervical block brings attention to the efforts made by surgeons in doing their best to provide comfort to their patients and to improve outcome of surgery. The case report on MNG with thymoma stresses on the need to expand the surgical skills of an endocrine surgeon.

I hope in future we can bring out more issues in a year and its my desire to see that we have a dedicated journal of our association and I would like to share with you that it appears to be a very believable dream. I am thankful to the office bearers of the association particularly to the members of editorial board for their hard work in bringing out this issue.

Long Live IAES !!!

Long Live IAES !!!

With Warm Regards

(Dr. Amit Agarwal)

INFORMATION

Editor	: Dr. Amit Agarwal	Endocrine Surgery Department, SGPGIMS, Lucknow (U.P.) Phone: +91 0522 2494393 E-mail: amitsgpgi@rediffmail.com
Published by	: Dr. Pooja Ramakant	Board Member, IAES Endocrine Surgery Department, King George's Medical University U.P., Lucknow E-mail: poojaramakant@gmail.com
Printed by	: Arun Publishing Services	21, New Municipal Building, Chowk, Lucknow-226003 Mobile: 8960224246